

People who walk in humility are patient,
Prideful people are impatient with others.

Humility, or Pride?

Humility is correctable, it's always learning,
Pride always puts on a show that it knows best.

Humility is not easily offended, it doesn't take things as personally (although it feels like it),
Pride is defensive, it is easily offended.

Humility gives credit to God and credit to other people,
Pride wants credit for itself.

Humility will listen to others,
Pride will always talk a great deal more than it listens; it may hear but doesn't listen at all.

Humility wants to have others succeed,
Pride wants personal success.

Humility encourages others,
Pride fears losing its position or its popularity.

Humility appreciates others efforts,
Pride is jealous of others achievements.

Humility demonstrates kindness and concern for all people,
Pride is rude to those who are seen as not able to help it.

Pride has self-confidence,
Humility has confidence in God.

Pride likes to manifest power in the World,
Humility comes from spiritual power.

At the end, pride glorifies self, but humility loses itself in God's glory.
